Chance for Georgetown and Hatchettes to Play on Gridiron

Chances Are Slim For Football Game Between Old Rivals

OTHER ATHLETIC GOSSIP

By NAT T. WORLEY.

Lack of student support up to the present time, renders the introduction of football at Georgetown University practically impossible according to Prof. Leslie C. McNamee, faculty director of athletics at the downtown institution.

This virtually means that the Hatchettes, owing to the lack of school spirit among the students and faculty, will pass up the grandest chance to recoup lost athletic honors they have had since the historic break with Georgetown ten years ago. It means that the empty athletic coffers of the Buff and Blue will remain empty for some time to come, and that the ripe harvest of loose change which would come rolling in at the gate should Georgetown and George Washington clash, must remain in the pockets of those who will and be begged.

With athletic affairs in the District in a chaotic condition, and with Georgetown without a logical rival to take Virginia's place or the schedule, the Hatchettes have no opportunity to step in and retrieve their past reverses on the sporting map, but the students must come across with the necessary support or nothing can be done.

Students Themselves to Blame.

Prof. McNamee, "the student's friend," as he is popularly known, has recently exhausted every possible means at his command to wake up the sleeping student body and extract the money needed to bring success. He has promised the faculty that he will be responsible financially for athletics at the university this year, and he has devoted all of his spare time pulling for Georgetown in the field of sports, but thus far for 1,200 students enrolled not more than 10 per cent have responded to the call for help, and some of those who have responded and been bullied before they fell into line.

Georgetown, according to the best information at the writer's command, is willing to forget the past and meet the Hatchettes half-way toward wiping out past differences. It has been arranged that the two teams will play on the field of the Washington track met. Farther than this, it is impossible for Georgetown to go, and now the proposition is put squarely up to Georgetown to grab the chance or lose it.

Athletic tickets can be purchased for the paltry sum of $2. About 125 have been paid for, and about 100 more have been sold at this time. About $1,500 must be obtained if football is to be revived at Georgetown, and about $1,000 must be raised to run the team in plain as day to a one-eyed man that unless a miracle happens Georgetown and George Washington will not meet on the gridiron next fall.

Leo C. Terry, financial secretary of the Georgetown University Athletic Association, is also anxious to go off to a vacation, and he is proving a much harder task to arouse it than I thought possible, and the year is rapidly passing. Unless something is done very soon, through the year without piling up another athletic debt.

If athletics are done away with at the university, and they will be unless the students arouse themselves at once, there will be no one to blame but the ones who have stood back and refused to help at the time when we need it most.

"I have heard several assertions that it was not possible to have all forms of

Gallaudet Quint Wins From George Washington

By FRANK COLLEY.

Coming through with a rush in the last two minutes of play Gallaudet College snatched victory from the grasp of the George Washington University basketball quint last night in the Kendall Gymnasium. Two points was the margin by which the George Washington boys were beaten, 25 to 23 being the exact figures.

While crippled to the extent of having two of the best men out of the line-up, George Washington last night had to play the game under a severe handicap, but putting up a game, the Gallaudet boys, in the opinion of the writer, were better off than the George Washington boys. The game was a much harder fought battle than would have been witnessed. As it was a money game, the boys were better off than the George Washington boys. The game was a much harder fought battle than would have been witnessed. As it was a money game, the boys were better off than the George Washington boys.

For a time in the second half the spectators had nothing to choose from, both teams were on even terms but the Hatchettes came through with a couple of points and it looked as though they were

COACH OF TRACK ATHLETES.

By FREDDIE WELSH.

I HAVE often been asked if I would advise the average young man of athletic tendencies to go into the boxing game.

Well, not professionally.

If you are interested in boxing, go into the amateur game. In other words, take it up simply for the sake of boxing, and not for the money, and if you will do that it will be well worth while.

I am a strong advocate of boxing for the sake of the fun and the benefit that you can get out of it. After I retire from the ring I intend to continue to do a little boxing in private, among my friends, just for the pleasure. Certainly I do not intend when I get fat and staid to use my fists and muscles as a means of earning my living. I know that others have done that, and that it is also a common experience with runners and swimmers in other branches of sport, but it is the one greatest mistake that an athlete can make.

I do not expect to do anything of the kind. Naturally, I shall not allow myself to be trained in the very severe training necessary for
